

Chadwell Street Pentonville, Islington, London

We were appointed by a developer client to provide landscape architect's information to support a detailed Planning application for this proposed residential development in north London.

This development plot was a former car parking area located within the New River Conservation Area. It is bound on all sides by existing party walls. Access to the site is restricted to a single route off Chadwell Street and it was anticipated that the final proposal would not accommodate any on site vehicles.

Surrounding the site are a number of existing trees. The site wide masterplan needed to consider the location of these trees within its design. In addition the detailing at ground level was carefully considered so as to minimise the potential detrimental impact of ground works on their health.

Our landscape design needed to consider the pedestrian circulation route through the site. As the site is relatively compact, overlooking needed to be carefully considered. Our landscape architects introduced as much planting as possible to provide a sense of privacy. Finally, as a significant proportion of the residential development is to be located below ground level we needed to carefully consider the lower ground floor spaces. We needed to introduce planting at the upper level to provide privacy whilst allowing in as much natural daylight to the lower ground floor level as possible.
